I want the first button to change the text on the movieclip, and the second one to change the background image. But, I can only have one code that changes the one thing at once. Here is my code so far: import fl.transitions.Tween; var atm:MovieClip = atm; atm.visible = false; atm.alpha = 0; Tween.to(atm, 1, {alpha: 1, onComplete: function(){atm.visible=true;}}); var btnc:MovieClip = btnc; btnc.visible = false; btnc.alpha = 0; Tween.to(btnc, 1, {alpha: 1, onComplete: function(){btnc.visible=true;}}); function button1click(event:MouseEvent):void { trace("I AM CLICKED"); } function button2click(event:MouseEvent):void { trace("I AM CLICKED"); } A: Just add them both to the same event listener: import fl.transitions.Tween; atm.visible = false; atm.alpha = 0; Tween.to(atm, 1, {alpha: 1, onComplete: function(){atm.visible=true;}}); var btnc:MovieClip = btnc; btnc.visible = false; btnc.alpha = 0; Tween.to(btnc, 1, {alpha: 1, onComplete: function(){btnc.visible=true;}}); var btn1:MovieClip = atm; btn1.addEventListener(MouseEvent.CLICK, button1click); btn2.addEventListener(MouseEvent.CLICK, button2click); Q: Making Spark take advantage of multiple cores I have a small Spark program that uses collect() to compute the sum of some things and store the result as a different dataframe. I then join that dataframe to some
